

HAWKER TELLS OF HIS FLIGHT

They Encountered Cold Air, Then Clouds, and Finally Had Engine Trouble

WATER CIRCULATION ACTED VERY BADLY

He and Grieve Given Ovation on Their Way from Scotland to England

Edinburgh, Scotland, May 27.—Harry G. Hawker and Lieutenant Commander Mackenzie Grieve, who were rescued by the Danish ship Mary after the airplane in which they were attempting to cross the Atlantic had alighted in midocean, arrived here this morning on their way to London from Thurso, where they were landed by a British warship yesterday. As they left the train they were seized and lifted to the shoulders of a crowd which bore them to a hotel, where they had breakfast. They were heartily cheered when their train left the station at 10 o'clock.

London, May 27.—The correspondent of the Daily Mail who is traveling with Harry G. Hawker and Lieutenant Commander Mackenzie Grieve on their way to this city sends from Inverness, Scotland, a detailed account of the difficulties encountered by the two airmen during their unsuccessful attempt to fly across the Atlantic.

During the first four hours of the voyage, the air was freezing cold, but the airmen were quite comfortable. Hawker, however, was unable to steer a good course because of the clouds, being at times forced to go around them.

When about 800 miles out to sea the weather continued very bad and clouds rose to great heights. Several times Hawker tried to clear them, but lost height at every attempt and each time the machine was started climbing the water in the radiator boiled furiously, which involved waste.

At last, however, the airplane reached a height of 12,000 feet and it was decided to stay at that level for the rest of the trip.

"We had not yet doubted being successful in getting across," Hawker said, in describing his experience. "We were at that time above most of the clouds. The moon had risen and we were keeping a good course, although we had to go a little slower and close the throttle to keep the water from heating up."

"We continued at this height until we had been in the air 12½ hours. Then came heavy clouds again. They were very high, reaching a level of 15,000 feet and being very black. It was almost impossible to steer through them and each time I tried to climb the water boiled badly."

Hawker then described his efforts to find the cause of the trouble with the water cooling system and said that he concluded something had got into the water filter between the radiator and the pumps and that the only thing to do was to stop the motor and put the nose of the machine down steeply with the hope that this might clear away the refuse in the filter. This was successful.

AUSTRALIANS REJOICE

Over the Bravery Shown By Hawker in His Flight.

Paris, May 27.—The joy of the Australian delegation at the peace conference over the news of the rescue of Harry Hawker was expressed in a statement issued by it.

"The world will not forget his plucky attempt," the statement said. "Australia is proud of Harry Hawker and the Australian delegation hails him as a worthy son of the great land which gave him birth. The flight was for the purpose of testing the ability of an airplane to cross a great space in a new way. Technically, the airplane has yet to be proved, but Hawker's attempt has more than proved the ability of the men who operate those machines. It is a great thing to know we can still produce brave men. It is perhaps greater that the whole world, after five years of war, still admires bravery."

RICKARD DEMANDS WILLARD COME EAST

Fight Promoter Has Failed to Receive Word That One of His Entertainers Has Left California.

Toledo, May 27.—Failing to receive any official word from Jess Willard concerning his departure from Los Angeles, Tex Rickard, promoter of the heavy-weight championship battle between Willard and Jack Dempsey here July 4, to-day telegraphed the champion requesting him to start for Toledo immediately.

"Willard agreed to be here six weeks in advance of the contest," Rickard said, "and that time is past. He asked for a few days in which to attend to personal affairs on the coast and I consented, but I think he has delayed his departure long enough. It is time that he should be on the ground and in training. I have requested him to be here Saturday."

DAYLIGHT SAVING REPEAL ON AGRICULTURAL BILL

Measure Reported Out By Committee Would Go Back to Old Time Basis Second Sunday After Bill Was Signed.

Washington, May 27.—The agricultural appropriation bill was reported out of the House committee yesterday with supplemental appropriations increasing the total from $31,673,000 to $32,628,000 and a legislative rider providing for the repeal of the daylight saving act on the second Sunday after the measure is signed by the president.

Principal additions to the appropriations were $500,000 for fighting animal tuberculosis and $250,000 for fighting the corn borer, which has caused great damage in New York and Massachusetts.

Secretary Houston asked Congress yesterday for an increase of $306,000 in the appropriation for the farm management bureau.

A Mother Wrote This:—

"A few years ago I weighed less than one hundred pounds. I took Father John's Medicine faithfully for a little over two years and now weigh one hundred and forty pounds, and do not recall that I have been as well in my lifetime. I attribute it all to Father John's Medicine."

This statement is given voluntarily for the benefit it may be to others. The name and address will be given on request.

For a period of over 60 years Father John's Medicine has been building up an army of word-of-mouth advertisers who tell their friends of the benefits received from this old fashioned, pure and wholesome food medicine. For over 60 years it has proved its value as a safe family medicine. Guaranteed free from alcohol.—Adv.
